INITIAL TEACHER TRAINING POLICY

1. Introduction

The King's School sees the involvement in teacher training programmes as an opportunity to sharpen and share the good practice evident in the school's reputation locally, nationally and internationally. Involvement in teacher training is a logical extension of the work recognised through Investors in People and helps to keep the school up to date on educational research.

2. Rationale

The King's School is committed to Initial Teacher Training, principally in partnership with the University of Exeter and the JCTSA.

Involvement with teacher training provides the following benefits for the school community:

- Provides curriculum areas with a focus of attention on effective teaching and provides opportunities for reflection of whole school procedures and learning strategies.
- Provides students with additional teacher resources and staff with professional development opportunities.
- Provides the school with the opportunity to contribute to high quality training for the profession.
- Provides contact with Higher Education establishments which contribute to enrichment in many school developments.
- Provides professional development opportunities for school staff.

3. Roles

The school-based nature of the teacher training models will help trainees become effective teachers by working in a normal school environment with support from experienced teachers and means that responsibility is shared between school and University. The Headteacher is responsible for monitoring the teacher training policy and for ensuring that the training meets the requirements agreed in the Memorandum of Understanding.

The roles of teacher training Co-ordinator, Subject Mentors, Tutors and University Visiting Tutors are as defined in the University partnership documentation.

The role of the teacher training Co-ordinator will be part of the job description of the Deputy Headteacher Personnel. The school will also involve members of the Leadership Group and other staff, where appropriate (e.g. SENCO), in the delivery of the school-based programme of professional studies.

4. Managing the Partnership

- Departments working with trainees will have responsibility for allocating staff to work with trainees and be models of good practice.
- Normally the school will offer places to between six and ten trainees per placement from Exeter University via the ITE programme and one School Direct place. Trainees will work in curriculum areas decided after discussion with the teacher training Co-ordinator and curriculum leaders.
- Wherever possible the school will provide a balanced timetable that meets the training needs of the trainee. This may not always be possible if such a timetable conflicts with the needs of students at The King's School.
- Subject tutors at The King's School will provide a weekly meeting with each trainee to monitor progress and support training.
- The school will give the Co-ordinator, Mentors and Subject Tutors the opportunity to attend appropriate teacher training, including induction and support training.
- The school will recognise the time implications that the administration of the teacher training Partnership will involve.
- The school will support the need for scheduled meetings between mentors and trainees as set out in school-based work handbooks.
- The school will keep all aspects of the partnership under review on an annual basis.
- Trainees will be encouraged to play as full a part as possible in the life of the school, the pastoral system, staff and parent meetings and extra-curricular activities.

- For School Direct applicant all applications will be handled by Woodroffe School as the lead in the JCTSA. Applicants must meet the criteria as determined by the University of Exeter and will undergo an interview at which The King's School will be lead. Only candidates successful at interview will be considered for a placement at The King's School.

5. Applying the teacher training Model

- The school will endeavour to support all trainees as they progress between the three levels of competence of the phased training approach. The school will target support towards the Dialogue of Teaching as set out in the school-based work handbooks.
- As trainees work with curriculum areas the progression, from demonstration and modelling and episodes to whole lessons with focused observations and annotated agendas, will be monitored by curriculum areas. The school will support the trainees in their task to provide the evidence needed to confirm their professional training.
- Individual curriculum areas will make arrangements to meet with trainees on a weekly basis and the school will arrange for three supervisory conferences each term with the appointed mentor.
- The school will provide a series of meetings for trainees in after-school hours in which we will provide a programme of professional studies.

6. Resourcing

- The school will support the training of all staff who have an involvement with teacher training trainees.
- As part of their training needs, teacher training trainees will have access to the resources of individual curriculum areas and additional funding will be made available to those areas. The school will provide all the necessary documentation needed by the trainee to become familiar with the policies and practices within the school.
- Other funding will be distributed to Subject Tutors, Mentors and whole staff as shown.
- These financial arrangements are subject to modification in the light of revised contracts with the University.

7. Finance

Teacher training money will be split the following way or if the funding is different pro rata:

£1200 received/trainee	=
		£200 to mentor
		£550 to subject tutor
		£25 for school-based Professional Development sessions (per session)
		£130 to specific departments- photocopying, other resources used by ITE
		£100 to staff room funds

Subject Tutors and Mentors

Will be paid £25.00 per hour session with the trainees.

This is	£25 x 22	=	£550 for tutor
	£25 x 8	=	£200 for mentor

School-based Professional Development

This is a requirement during both placements.

A programme for this will be produced and calendared. It will include the school NQTs if appropriate. A payment of £25/session (1 hour) will be made to main scale staff who lead sessions.

6 x £25	=	£150
---------	---	------

Subject tutors and trainees are expected to meet on a weekly basis at a mutually convenient time. Care should be taken to avoid the use of NCPs.

School Direct

This will have a separate financial contract agreed with the University of Exeter and the Jurassic Coast Teaching Schools' Alliance. However, due to the heavy school based focus subject tutors will receive additional non-contact time to assist in the trainee's development, where possible. Funding from the university will pay for this weekly teacher release time and the subject tutor will not receive additional payment.
